DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

4. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 03/31/2008 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

5. Claims 1 and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.
6. The basis of this rejection is based on recent Federal Circuit decisions and Supreme Court precedent in particular, Diamond v. Diehr, 450 U.S. 175, 184 (1981); Parker v. Flook, 437 U.S. 584, 588 n.9 (1978); Gottschalk v. Benson, 409 U.S. 63, 70 (1972); Cochrane v. Deener, 94 U.S. 780, 787-88 (1876) which state that the process must:
 - (1) be tied to another statutory class (such as a particular apparatus); or
 - (2) transform underlying subject matter (such as an article or materials) to a different state or thing.

For a claimed invention to be statutory subject matter eligible, the claimed invention must fall within a judicial exception. Mere ideas in the abstract (i.e., abstract idea, law of nature, natural phenomena) that do not apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts fail to promote the "progress of science and the useful arts" (i.e., the physical sciences as opposed to social sciences, for example) and therefore are found to be non-statutory subject matter. For a process claim to pass muster, the recited claims should positively recite the other statutory class (the thing or product) to which it is tied, for example by identifying the apparatus that accomplishes the method steps or positively recite subject matter that is being transformed for example by identifying the material that is being changed to a different state.

7. In the present case, claims 1 and 20 recite an abstract idea only. The claims recite steps and means for a) defining processes, b) forming links between processes, traversing processes by meeting exit requirements. These steps and means do not apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts since they can be performed in the mind of the user or by use of a pencil and paper. These steps and means only constitute an idea of how to define, linking and traversing processes.

8. In particular, explicitly claiming the medium or structure in the body of the claim that performs the underlying process steps would serve to better recite the technological arts within the present set of claims.

Allowable Subject Matter

9. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

The primary reason that claims 1, 3-7, 11, 14, 16-20, 26-33, and 35-37 distinguish over the prior art is the inclusion of the limitations in all of the claims, that is not found in the prior art, of assessing patient request by a primary care physician, submitting only a single CPT code corresponding to a single, specified medical service to be evaluated by a hospitalist or case manager, wherein evaluating the single code submitted comprises (i) the effectiveness or clinical importance of the service required to be rendered, (ii) whether the code is applicable to services that are covered by the patient's health care, and (iii) whether the code is susceptible to duplicative and/or unbundled billing practice or otherwise provides any financial interest to the primary care physician, and then rendering the requested services based on the response of either approval or disapproval; furthermore, repeating the steps to submit codes for utilization of either in-patient services, out-patient services, referral to a specialist, or a combination thereof, wherein the assessment is made by a primary care physician, but the services are performed by a physician other than a primary care physician, and finally when the patient has a chronic condition, repeating the steps to provide treatment of the chronic condition. The closes prior arts (Bond et al. U.S. Patent No. 6,177,940, Peterson et al. U.S. Patent No. 6,343,271, and Finn U.S. Publication No. 2002/0120466) teaches evaluating the single CPT code relating to a medical service by a remote server, wherein evaluation is to determine whether the claim may be automatically adjudicated or manually, furthermore, patient's social security is submitted and evaluation is based of the benefits summary to decide if the patient is eligible for the services and providing treatment and THEN submitting the claim for pre-checking of auto adjudication; Furthermore, submitting codes for utilization of either in-patient services, out-patient services, referral to a specialist, or a combination thereof, wherein the assessment and the submission of codes is done by a physician other than a primary care physician (Finn). However, Bond, Peterson, and Finn, both individually or in combination fail to teach, "evaluating the single code submitted comprises (i) the effectiveness or clinical importance of the service required to be rendered, (ii) whether the code is applicable to services that are covered by the patient's health care, and (iii) whether the code is susceptible to duplicative and/or unbundled billing practice or otherwise provides any financial interest to the primary care physician; responding to said submission based upon said evaluation comprising either approval or disapproval to proceed with rendering the requested service; assessing said request and determining whether said request substantiates the utilization of either in-patient services, out-patient services, referral to a specialist, or a combination thereof, wherein said assessment is made by a primary care physician and the in-patient services, out-patient services, and services from a specialist are to be performed by a physician other than the primary care physician; and when the patient has a chronic condition, repeating steps of submitting codes, to continuously assess the utilization of the in-patient services, out-patient services, and services from a specialist to provide treatment of the chronic condition.
